

Sandra C. Muñoz is the owner of the Law Offices of Sandra C. Muñoz. Sandra's law office is dedicated to representing workers whose civil rights have been violated. For over 19 years, Sandra has worked on countless cases involving employment discrimination, harassment, and retaliation. Sandra also has extensive experience in cases involving police abuse.

Sandra graduated from Loyola Law School of Los Angeles in 1997 and earned her Bachelor of Arts degree in Chicano/a Studies from UCLA. Sandra is also a graduate of Garfield High School in East Los Angeles and a former student of renowned math teacher Jaime Escalante. At Loyola, Sandra was a member of the team that competed and won the 1996 Hispanic National Bar Association Moot Court. She was also President of La Raza Law Students Association and named the National Association of Women Lawyers Outstanding Law Student of the Year in 1997.

At the outset of her career, Sandra was an Associate Attorney at Hadsell & Stormer (now Hadsell, Stormer, & Renick), a prominent civil rights law firm. There, Sandra represented numerous clients in employment cases. Sandra was then an Associate Attorney at Moreno, Becerra, & Casillas, a renowned Latino civil rights and catastrophic injury law firm. There, Sandra worked on numerous cases brought by victims of the LAPD Rampart Scandal, as well as other police abuse cases. In 2011, Sandra opened the Law Offices of Sandra C. Muñoz where she continues to pursue her long-life commitment to representing workers.

Sandra has successfully argued before the Ninth Circuit and the California Court of Appeal. She has also been featured in the Daily Journal, participated on various continuing education panels, and taught legal courses for Dowling College. In 2002, Ms. Muñoz served as the President of the Latina Lawyers Bar Association. Sandra has also worked as the Managing Editor of the State Bar's California Labor and Employment Law Review. In 2004 and 2005, Sandra was named Southern California Rising Star by Super Lawyers. In 2011, Sandra was nominated for Attorney of the Year by the National Latina Business Woman Association. Since 2012, Sandra has been a member of the Central District of California Merit Selection Panel. Sandra also received the California Lawyer Attorney of the Year Award in 2016 for her work representing warehouse workers in a wage and hour class action against Wal-Mart and other defendants. Also in 2016, Sandra received the LLBA Mary V. Orozco Abriendo Caminos Award.

In addition to her legal career, Sandra is also a writer who earned an MFA degree in Creative Writing from Antioch University Los Angeles. Sandra co-authored the play "Black Butterfly, Jaguar Girl, Piñata Woman and Other Superhero Girls Like Me" with Luis Alfaro, Marisela Norte, and Alma Cervantes. "Black Butterfly" was nominated for an Ovation Award in 2000 for Best Writing of a World Premiere and was performed at the Kennedy Center in Washington D.C.
